Featured Fanatics

Susan Skelton, Half Fanatic #2965

I just completed my 50th Lifetime Half Marathon! My first 5 were only one each year in 1997, 1998, 1999, 2008 & 2009. It was in 2010 that I read an article about a man who did a full marathon in every state that inspired me to tackle doing a half marathon in each state. So far I've crossed 17 states off the list. And it was while researching half marathons in different states that I caught the "fever" for doing half marathon and not just one in each state.

So in 2010 & 2011, I completed 4 half marathons each of those years. In 2012, I did 9 half marathons and in 2013 I did 17 half marathons. The goal for this year is to complete 31 so that I can get to Earth within Half Fanatics.

I was never an athlete in high school or college and it wasn't until I saw my husband start training for an Olympic distance triathlon (he had never been an athlete either) that I decided to see what I was made of. Always an avid walker initially, I began to slowly but surely start to run. And while I've gotten faster as a runner over the years it is merely from the consistency of running. I don't train to get faster. There are no farteks in my world, no speed work. I just love doing half marathons. I love the entire experience. The course, the crowd and the other runners. And of course the BLING! I don't want to get hung up on missing what's going on around me while doing a half marathon because I have to finish in "xx:xx:xx" time or it would be considered a failure. Often I'll even keep my phone out and take pictures along the way to add to my blog. So I'm happy to be toward the back of the pack.

Running keeps me healthy. Running keeps me sane...even though I belong to this asylum.
